Officials said the girl's parents were deported to Brazil, and she was brought to the city by a sponsor. Macauso had been ordered to leave the U.S. last month, but a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans ruled against her, saying the Department of Homeland Security failed to prove that her sponsors were legitimate. The case stems from a "chain migration" system in which relatives of those already in the U.S. are allowed to apply for a green card. The DHS is appealing the decision to the full 5th Circuit. Jolliffe argued that Macauso’s case should be heard at a regional appeals court because most judges hearing immigration cases in New Orleans have no experience with immigration law. The 5th Circuit’s decision was unanimous except for one judge, who was recused from the case. If Macauso loses again, she will almost certainly be deported to Haiti, which she has not
