This technology is the main reason that experience players will be able to play how they actually move in the game. Players can increase or decrease their speed, acceleration and agility by varying their on-ball behaviour, improving their decision-making and creating new game tactics. In addition, more precise technical actions are now available to players, allowing for more speed, power and ball control. For the first time ever, players can see how they can move and control the ball on the pitch when played in real-time by using the on-screen display of player's movements. Alongside enhanced match engine technology, FIFA 22's suite of new skills also includes improved camera angles for 360° viewing and the ability to “cut” free-kicks and penalties. Another key feature of FIFA 22 is the new “team instruction” system, which allows coaches to tell players what they need to be doing when on the pitch. In-depth tutorials are also part of FIFA 22’s learning tools, which allow players to learn from each other and receive feedback from other players and coaches. The first gameplay footage from FIFA 22 was revealed on September 16, 2018 as part of the 12-minute E3 trailer. Additional gameplay footage was revealed at EA Play, EA Sports hosted the EA Play panel in Paris during E3 2018, the recent PLAYTIME New York event, a number of NBA 2K League events and more.
