AutoCAD is a vector graphics editor that uses 2D-based technology and the shape-based drafting system of the AutoLISP programming language. Fluxes is a program that allows you to develop multi-level 3D models. Using the properties of the surface models, you can create materials and simulate the appearance of different natural materials. At any time, you can change the lighting conditions of the 3D model (ambient, diffuse, specular, specular with shadows) and project the result as a video or image. When the object rotates, the colors of the surface reflect the position of the sun, and vice versa. To begin with, you can select a model. At any time, you can select a specific model, run a simulation of the project, or export the results to a video. You can simulate the appearance of surfaces in real time. In this way, it is possible to simulate, for example, the effects of lighting, and to change the settings of the lighting and materials that can be applied. When the object rotates, the colors of the surface reflect the position of the sun, and vice versa. Fluxes provides a comprehensive toolset. It supports multiple material types, texture maps, shadow maps, as well as a large number of lighting techniques (ambient, ambient with shadows, diffuse, ambient with shadows and shadows). Features: The program supports 3D models and animations. You can import models in a format that is supported by the program. The 3D models can be saved in formats that are supported by the program (CSV, OBJ, DXF, X_3D, M3, BMP, JPG). Fluxes also supports animations in a variety of formats: FLA, MOV, AVI, AVI, MPEG, MPEG, WMV, M4V, MPG, MXF, MP4, GIF, BMP, TGA, JPG, PSD, EPS, PPM, DAT, TIFF, TAR, KAR, SND, INK, PIX, VRML, FLX, TBL, XML, MDS, PDF, J2K, DSS, CR2, CRW, B4T, B4V, DNG, DSR, X3D, CHS.
