admitted burn patients. Post-traumatic stress disorder is a prevalent psychiatric illness, but little is known about the clinical characteristics of the disorder. We examined the relationship of clinically relevant factors to the probability of post-traumatic stress disorder in adult burn survivors admitted to the medical unit at the Massachusetts General Hospital. One hundred and two patients with severe burn injury were evaluated using the Clinician Administered PTSD Scale and the Patient Health Questionnaire. Forty-eight patients (

Booty [Panda Energy Game] $0.49.Type in the T.Bananas are artificially ripened with ethylene gas and stored for a long time. Since ethylene gas induces ripening of bananas, ethylene absorbing materials for absorbing ethylene gas are under development. However, ethylene gas is a characteristic gas of ripening of bananas, and ethylene gas is contained in bananas along with other volatile compounds such as butane. The amount of ethylene gas released from banana causes a problem that the gas interferes with the activity of a volatile compound absorbing material having absorption capacity for other compounds. Therefore, development of a volatile compound absorbing material with high absorption capacity for a specific compound, particularly ethylene gas, from bananas, has been desired. One of the volatile compounds is 2-methyl-2-butene in the form of a gas and easily permeates a gaseous boundary, and thus is known as a useful compound. As a specific compound usable for production of a liquid fuel or for a chain transfer agent, 2-methyl-2-butene is reported. For example, Japanese Patent Application Laid-Open (JP-A) No. H5-321068 discloses that 2-methyl-2-butene is used as a starting material of a terpene, and JP-A

No. H6-3552 discloses that 2-methyl-2-butene is used as
