Tuesday, September 21, 2010 Rajasthani Bahu Ji Variety Bahu Ji was a common term to mention the wives of lower castes here in India. Whilesthe word itself is quite common and very acceptable for the transgender it has acquired the connotation of a woman who is either socially oppressed or dangerously hot. I was made aware of Bahu Ji for the first time while researching a South Indian village called Aramakunta. It was a place with a strong palace built in 16th century which bore the chieftain's family name as Aramayam. The low castes did not have identity or status, instead they performed manual work. They were bound to certain rituals and tasks only I wasn't sure why. The most serious ritual I was made aware of was that of the birth and death rituals. Every month a female member of the family had to spend ten days to ten weeks in Ayaikannamalu. I did interview several people and I got the full description of how the rites are performed. When the woman considers that she is terminally ill, she informs her parents and in turn her husband. They consult with a doctor who asks them many questions regarding the woman's medical history and symptoms. After the doctor decides it is too late, they inform the woman's family,

Imagine a London-Edinburgh main line route with the stunning landscapes of Northern England and the Commonwealth – now you have it on Train Simulator. What was once an isolated and infrequently used route has become a showcase of British engineering and passenger trains. Taking in some of the busiest towns and cities on the UK rail network including; London, Peterborough, York, Darlington, Doncaster, Newcastle, Edinburgh and Glasgow, the full ECML covers a distance of 632km and has been given a fresh coat of paint for today's digitally rich generation, taking on board the distinctive First Capital Connect livery. Along the route are some of the UK's most iconic landmarks including; the impressive Alexandra Palace, Emirates Stadium (home to Arsenal Football Club), Digswell Viaduct, Gasworks Tunnel at King's Cross, Copenhagen Tunnels, Bounds Green train maintenance depot and Peterborough's large freight yard and Post Office depot. The ECML route is also home to the famous Flying Scotsman, a high speed train which runs non-stop from King's Cross to Edinburgh Waverley. The route for Train Simulator takes in the 76 mile (122km) section of the ECML from London to Peterborough. Starting out at the busy London King's Cross station, a large hub for long distance and outer-suburban services, the route winds its way slowly out of the sprawling Capital and, passing Finsbury Park and Alexandra Palace. As the route opens up into Hertfordshire, the four track line passes through Potters Bar, Hatfield, Welwyn Garden City and Hitchin, before terminating in Peterborough. Significant landmarks along the route also include the striking Alexandra Palace, the Emirates Stadium (home to Arsenal Football Club), Digswell Viaduct, Gasworks Tunnel at King's Cross, Copenhagen Tunnels, Bounds Green train maintenance depot, and Peterborough's large freight yard and Post Office depot. For fans of the west coast mainline route, there is also the quick drive option available with the stops at those most popular stations along the route. Whether you are looking for high speed running or the more serene stopping commuter services along the route of the famous Flying Scotsman, the East Coast Main Line London-Peterborough route for Train Simulator is filled with challenging drives and magnificent scenery across the UK's capital and Home Counties. Only hit to light blue square with the dice. Gray squares represent as trap. - If your roll is higher, you will raise the dice. - If your roll is lower than the higher dice, you will lose the dice. - The "magic" boosts can be switched between each turn by clicking on the "Magic" button. Use it to unlock the other boosts. - When you are hit, you will lose "health." Be careful when using the boosts or you will lose the dice! - After you have lost the health, you will be "dead" and will no longer roll. You will still have the ability to teleport to town after you are dead! However, you will no longer be able to get any more gold and you will only be able to hold 1 of the 2 magic boosts. - When you have 5 or 6 gold, you will automatically teleport to town. - If your gold is 10 or more, you will survive without the gold going down. - You can start your turn twice in the same turn, but only once in a row. - If you have more than 6 dice, you will roll them all for an extra boost. - You can not use the "magic" button if you are dead. Score: Features: - Roguelite D&D Online - Turn based strategy with a twist - 8 unique dungeons to explore - New builds are coming every week - Custom character builds - Play yourself or your best friend and show off your skills - Record and upload your replays and awards the community - Get notified when a new build is available - Completely free to play! I have a .NET application that uses the default.NET GUI framework. Now, I need to deploy this application to the client in a serverless mode. Once I deploy the app, I need to customize the GUI in the target environment. I know I can simply modify the config files to add or remove items, but I was wondering if anyone had a better solution. In short, I would like to create a custom dll that adds or removes items from the GUI's build config files. I know we can target.NET Framework version 4.0 because this is a very simple "GUI" application, but can we easily do this by selecting items in the GUI (I am not working with XML) and then adding or removing them? Note: I
