Neuritis in the facial nerve is often associated with many possible etiologies. Common causes include herpes zoster oticus, Lyme disease, and whiplash injuries. This chapter explores the etiology and diagnosis of the most common facial palsy, idiopathic Bell's palsy, in depth. The fundamental concepts are reviewed and important history-taking points are highlighted. Differential diagnosis of many causes of facial nerve palsy is also reviewed.Surgical Stent-Assisted Coil Embolization for Treatment of an Internal Carotid Artery Pseudoaneurysm. The optimal treatment for carotid artery pseudoaneurysms following endovascular interventions is not well defined. Here we present the case of a 79-year-old male patient who presented with post-stent dilation of a carotid artery pseudoaneurysm following coil embolization of a large intracavernous carotid artery aneurysm. The patient underwent an open surgical procedure with stent-assisted coil embolization and carotid artery thrombectomy with resection of the aneurysm. Postoperative angiography revealed successful exclusion of the aneurysm. The patient recovered uneventfully and was discharged home 1 week later. In conclusion, stent-assisted coil embolization and subsequent thrombectomy may offer a aa67ecbc25

Most of the comments are paraphrased, but are based on the text of the post.Q: How can I prove this limit for harmonic series? $$\lim\limits_{n \to \infty} \frac{1}{2} \left(\frac{1}{2}+\frac{1}{3}+ \cdots +\frac{1}{n}\right)$$ I have no idea how to prove this limit. I think I have to use induction but I can't prove something like this. A: It's well-known that $$ \frac{1}{n}-\frac{1}{n+1}=\frac{1}{n(n+1)}. $$ Therefore, the sequence $(1/2,1/3,1/4,1/5,\ldots)$ is $$ \frac12,\frac16,\frac18,\frac18,\ldots $$ which converges to $1/2$ (the harmonic mean). Q: Lubridate date format I have some problems with Lubridate (package chron) time series computation. I want to compute a time-series of days from a date as follows: library(chron) library(lubridate) dat
